TALL BUILDINGS
MIDLANDS CONFERENCE
15.06.27 – BIRMINGHAM

Following the success of the 2026 events, Tall Buildings Media is delighted to announce two regional conferences in 2027 – Tall Buildings North and Tall Buildings Midlands.

Across the country, the skylines of Britain's major cities are being transformed at an unprecedented rate by the emergence of tall buildings. From high-density schemes addressing the nation's housing shortage to office developments signalling growth and prosperity in the workplace market, confidence and viability remain robust despite wider industry challenges.

With cities like Leeds and Birmingham bringing forward major tall building projects, it's essential to provide a platform for sector professionals to celebrate successes, share experiences, and reflect on regional strengths, current activity, planning policies and exemplar case studies.

Tall Buildings North – Leeds, 24.02.27

The programme launches in February on 24 February, where delegates will witness a prestigious speaker line-up address key industry issues including the city's identity through tall buildings and updates on the Building Safety Regulator. A panel debate will explore experiences of navigating Gateway 2, while deep dives into groundbreaking tall building projects will offer inspiration and insight to investors, clients, contractors, architects and engineers alike.

Tall Buildings Midlands – Birmingham, 15.06.27

The conversation will continue in Birmingham on 15 June for a day of reflection, inspiration and insight. Featuring council members, policymakers and the professionals responsible for designing and delivering tall buildings, the conference will facilitate open and honest discussions about the region's tall buildings strategy, investment opportunities and key challenges facing architects.

The events will bring together senior figures from across the sector, including architects, designers, developers, contractors, consultants, engineers, and local authority decision-makers.
